To Whom It May Concern.....

To say I'm disappointed is to say the least..

I have been in the computer industry for 20 years and find your actions to be undescrivable....

Microsoft have out play their hand to the destruction of the industry, major competitors have been consumed with "free" software being given away as part of the operating system. My books define operating systems as the interface between application software and the hardware. Internet Explorer doesn't seem to fit here.....

The only hope left now is that the E.U. will censure them because you cannot.. A question now begs, what deal was done?

Yours Sincerely
